

What is pot limit holdem

A pot limit holdem has a restriction with the amount of minimum bet a player can place at a time. At any point in time with pot limit holdem the amount of buy in should be equal to the then existing value of the pot. A raise of a call should be existing value of the pot plus the raise. A pot limit holdem is widely played online for play money by many people. With pot limit holdem seemingly to complicate the loss most players tend to be tight and aggressive and fold most of the time to prevent a huge loss. With such risky variants it is wise to play tight and aggressive until one learns to calculate odds and several of strategies versus table image.

With pot limit holdem sometimes there may not be any profit with drawing hands, you might have to consider playing well with a strong hand to make huge profits or be sure that you will not lose a huge lot by folding earlier. Again, such decisions are strategic and you need to have played many hands before you get a feel of the right strategy that would apply for each kind of hand.

When playing with pot limit holdem as a beginner it is wise to use some odds calculator before you decide on your pre-flop moves so as to be on the safer side. At least until you get used to the kind of flow in these games, it is no bad idea to stick on to calculators.

A pot limit holdem is more thrilling than a limit game; however, it is still less frequented by those who love no limit games. These games can be played by people who are graduating to no limits abruptly from limit games. With the little shocks and stomach shocks from pot limit holdem with no limits beginning players would learn to expect some really bad odds. In short this can be used to transit slowly and gradually from limit to no limit.

If you have a strong hand and seem to be positioned in a early betting position, you can place big bets in pot limit holdem quite early; so that when you split you will have a juicy pot that has been enriched by rapid bets from the many people who did place the bets in the pot.

Paying right from the beginning is quite important in pot limit holdem and the result can be a hit or miss. Remember this is gambling you need to expect everything.